LITTLE THEATRE PLAY CITED AS EXAMPLE OF NEW TREND

An article by Hamilton and Benito entitled "Repetitive," appearing in the current issue of Theater Arts, cites the S. I. N. U. Little Theatre production of "The Yellow Jacket" as an example of a possible new trend in the program of educational theaters. On looking over such programs, the co-authors have reached the conclusion that if there is a new trend it is in favor of the four tributary theaters mentioned as illustrations of this trend.

"The Yellow Jacket," a Chinese theatrical drama, was produced last February in the traditional Chinese manner. No front curtain was used and costumes, sound, and lighting effects were all as authentic as possible. The experienced and competent help to create a Chinese atmosphere.

Conferences with students were held all through the three days. Plans for the organization or further promotion of the association were discussed, and problems relating to special facilities were considered at these conferences.

Mrs. Edward Jackson of Chicago, who installed the Parent-Teacher Association here three years ago, addressed the chapel audience Wednesday morning on the general plan of the Illinois Congress.

Mrs. Elmer Droste, Mt. Olive, Ill., director of the 31st district, was present at the conference and aided Mrs. Jackson in her work.

Marion Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simmons in "Archaisms," perhaps the most powerful single dance in the new repertory they have created for their original tour together this season. Beginning with the rapidity of the primitive in a "Ceremonial" to his savage god, the music and the dance about to a tremendous climatic climax in which just beats and un-composed sound on the "Institution" is the implacable power that rule destiny. This powerful climax has been known to bring audiences to their feet.

WINSLOW AND FITZ-SIMMONS WILL DANCE HERE MONDAY NIGHT; PROGRAM BEGINS 8:00 O'CLOCK

Have Entirely New Repertory of Dances Worked Out For Tour;
Fitz-Simmons Formerly Danced With Shawn

A new work of art by one of the country's leading composers in field of the dance will be heard here next Monday night at eight o'clock in the Shroyock Auditorium, when for the first time these two young American dancers, Marion Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simmons, will be presented on their initial tour together.

An entirely new repertory of dances has been worked out for the tour, representing some drastically new ideas in the dance. They are intended primarily to be American dances which will be appreciated by American audiences and to introduce the old theory that all good dances, come from Europe. The routine includes the American styles, purely classical types with the clean precision and elevation of the ballet.

Dances of religious inspiration, two in which the strict Spanish tradition is interpreted in terms of modern dance creation and one primitive cycle accompanied by percussive instruments, so stirring that at past performances audiences have risen to their feet on ecstatic cries.

Both of these young artists are former pupils and members of the Denishawn troupe and Mr. Fitz-Simmons, a former athlete and was once a member of Ted Shawn's men's dancing group. Mr. Fitz-Simmons was a member of the troupe which appeared on this campus some years ago.

Mr. Hess Meeker is the composer for the Winslow-Fitz-Simmons group. The work of Mr. Meeker, rather than to have the composer of the composition possibilities of the dance, he already shared the view that the modern dance and music can be a collaboration, each completing the artistic applications of the other. In this sense "Alma" dances, which the dancers will present here, justify the claim that it was composed as the dance was created and each part is an integral part of the other.

HALBERT GUILLEY IS EDITOR OF NEW BULLETIN

Alumni Publication
Will Make Appearance
Next School Year

Halbert Guilley, president of S. I. N. U. chapter of Phi Delta Kappa—national honorary journalistic fraternity—was chosen by that organization to edit the ALUMNI BULLETIN for the next school year.

The choice of Mr. Guilley came upon a recommendation from Mr. Pulliam. Mr. Guilley has been prominent in school affairs during his three years on this campus. He has been very active on the EGYPTIAN, of which he is associate editor for the ensuing school year.

The movement for this publication received its first official expression at the Alumni Banquet held this last month at Anthony Hall. Several more prominent alumni voiced their opinion that they were looking for the "close association" with the college. The idea of an ALUMNI BULLETIN took root at that time.

In entering to form a partnership last year, Miss Winslow and Mr. Fitz-Simmons felt that American dances should be presented to the American audiences. To that end they went into seclusion for nearly a year to work out some dances in accordance with this idea. They felt that there was romance and compelling interest in the American dance sources. Further, they felt that dances should conform to American rather than to European tastes. They felt that mystery, doubt and pseudo-profundity were in a sense, a curse to the American audience and others should be able to understand and enjoy them.

With this in mind they set about to create the routine which they will present here on Monday night. Their repertory is hailed everywhere for its signal contribution to the dance of American themes and a native movement understandable to audiences, whether or not they are educated in the dance.

INTERVIEW WITH CONDUCTOR OF FISK SINGERS REVEALS ENGAGEMENTS

By WAYNE MANN.

Under the direction of Mrs. James Meyers, the internationally known Fisk Singers, colored octet from Fisk University, Nashville, Tennessee, met the audience that had assembled in the Shroyok auditorium last Monday evening, with their interpretation of religious melodies and folk songs.

Singing before a large audience, the jubilee choruses seemed almost to live the words as it chanted with closed eyes "Steal Away," "Deep River," "I Want Two Wives," "Look Away," "Old Man River," and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot."

Linton Berrin, accompanist and soloist, probably was the most outstanding performer, as he received three encores after playing compositions by Handel, Gilbert, Purcell, and Rogers. Of the singers, the tenor voice of Cecil Reeves of Alabama, and the contralto deep bass tones of Cobe Weems of Michigan were the most prominent as they sang spirituals from "The Old South Land."

"I have led the boys for twenty years," said Conductor Mrs. Meyers, "taking them to Europe, where they sang before royalty and persons such as Lady Astor, but I enjoy touring the United States and leading my boys to sing before college audiences better than anything else I do. She then went on to explain that the "review" came from several different states ranging from Michigan to Georgia, and all funds that were made over expenses were given to Fisk University.

"Fisk University," said Mrs. Meyers, "was started after the Civil War by General Fisk from New

CAMPUS HEROES TRAIL OTHERS IN RACE FOR JOBS

All students, especially those who worked their way through college, have a better chance of getting a job after graduation than the campus hero or the college "grind," according to King Merritt, vice president of Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis, who has made a survey of one hundred eighty-six American schools.

Athletes and beauties, unlike a few years ago are not being sought unless they can offer to their prospective employers some character, scholarship, adaptability, leadership or personality, a survey of 138 American colleges and universities reveals.

Although the job outlook for college graduates is brighter than in 1925 or 1927, American employers are more exacting in their requirements, preferring employees capable of being developed into executives within the next decade over those who seem to have decided limitations.

Character Rated High.

Character as a prime qualification for a job, explained Mr. Merritt in reporting on total replies, "was mentioned by one hundred three schools, scholarship by twenty-nine, personality by eighteen, adaptability by twenty, and leadership by six. Secondary qualifications put scholarship first with sixty-six mentions. Then followed adaptability with thirty-five, character with thirty-three and personality with nineteen mentions. A total of 138 schools were surveyed, fifty-four and a half percent of the schools mentioned character, adaptability, leadership and scholarship forty-five mentions. Twenty-three mentions of campus popularity put it at the head of the fourth qualification group. Athletic prowess headed the fifth group with twenty-four mentions.

"Emphasis on character, which college placement officers tell me is a recent trend, is reflected in replies from one hundred twenty-nine educational institutions who cited two to eight or more qualities now sought by American employers. Qualities mentioned and their percentage of total mention in this group follow: character, 90.7 per cent, scholarship 89.1 per cent, adaptability 64.3 per cent, campus popularity 21.8 per cent, personality 25.5 per cent, leadership 22.5 per cent, leadership 17.8 per cent, and extra-curricular activities which includes outside jobs to pay one's way through college, 14 per cent.

Officials Explain Preferences.

"One hundred eighty-six institutions gave scholarship 83 per cent as character 83 per cent of the total mentions. The forty-three men's colleges gave scholarship ninety-three per cent and character 74 per cent. Where scholarship ranked ahead of character, university placement officers frequently added such explanations as: 'good character is assumed,' or 'good character is expected,' or 'character always is taken for granted.' One bureau head reported employers demanding students whose education had developed a true philosophy of life.

"An appointment official of a non-sectarian college wrote: 'I have found a very pronounced trend toward more emphasis on character, including a preference for the 'background.' Several denominational colleges, while varying on dogmas, reported 'religious' qualifications mentioned less frequently than heretofore.

"Officials of American institutions of higher learning were asked two questions: 'In order of their importance, if possible, what are the qualifications principally sought by employers of graduates?' and 'From your observations what qualifications do employers the last few years seem to be stressing more?' Less than twenty comments and explanations were made in answering the second question.

Initiative and Self-Reliance Attract.

"The student who today works his way through college," continued Mr. Merritt, "and thus has no or but educational expenses in whole or part can be counted on to solve difficulties after graduation, several officials emphasized. One typical reply to the query on what qualifications were being stressed more followed:

"Considerable emphasis is placed on the student earning part of his way through college. This is a business asset and improves the probability of getting a position, even though the scholarship is even handicapped somewhat by the process.

"Numerous replies mentioned: 'outside work done during the college course'; 'many employers are much interested in experience outside of college'; 'extra-curricular activities as indicative of ability outside class room' and 'ability, dependability, and reliability,' as shown by school

KEEPING ABREAST

They tell us that as future leaders of America, its members of the upper intellectual strata, as cultured and well-rounded personalities we must keep abreast of the times. Our background, aptitudes, and our education must be expanded and kept in keeping with the importance and responsibility of our social position. They inform us that we should utilize every inch of our broad horizons to intellectual advancement, and that we should be ever ready to acquire knowledge in the realms of current developments.

They suggest that we unflinchingly survey the morning paper and make it a habit of reading at least two readable weeklies in order to obtain the latest news and outside of college. One wrote that 'the ideal would be the student who is in the top third of his class and at the same time has earned part of his way through school.'

Personality and Adaptability Desired.

"The one hundred eighty-six institutions answering qualifications stressed more gave the following, in terms of percentage of mentions: character 37.1 per cent, scholarship 33.3 per cent, adaptability 23.7 per cent, leadership 10.3 per cent, and worked way through 7.5 per cent. Percentages for the one hundred twenty-nine educational colleges follow: character 40.3 per cent, scholarship 30.3 per cent, adaptability 23.7 per cent, leadership 21.1 per cent, worked way through 10.3 per cent, and leadership 9.3 per cent. In the forty-three men's schools, the percentages were: scholarship 37.2 per cent, character 32.6 per cent, adaptability 27.0 per cent, leadership 16.3 per cent, worked way through 11.6 per cent, and extra-curricular activities 9.3 per cent.

"Personality, that much used and abused word, as one of my informants puts it, is mentioned in combination with some other qualities like ability, adaptability and appearance. The latter word aroused the ire of the dean of a woman's college, who, after reporting found increasing stress on personal appearance, stressed and stressed, added 'personality is stressed as a means of terms of striking appearance or beauty.'

"Adaptability, co-operativeness, compatibility, and the ability to work harmoniously with others are being stressed more, especially by large organizations, who emphasize team play even in research.

"The one hundred eighty-six institutions replying to the query on qualifications stressed less, in terms of percentage of mentions, cited qualifications as follows: scholarship 21 per cent, athletics 12.9 per cent, campus popularity 12.9 per cent, and specialized training 7 per cent. Percentages for the one hundred twenty-nine educational colleges follow: scholarship 24 per cent, campus popularity 19.1 per cent, campus popularity 16.5 per cent, and specialized training 9.3 per cent. In the forty-three men's schools the percentages were: athletics 16.3 per cent, campus popularity 11 per cent, and campus popularity 9.3 per cent. Eight women's colleges reported scholarship stressed less.

Human Qualities Stressed.

"The 'book worm' and the 'human encyclopedia' with their brilliant and superlative scholarship are being sharply differentiated from job candidates who had average or above average grades plus ability, all-around training, adaptability, co-operativeness, dependability, enthusiasm, initiative, imagination, loyalty and reliability. More book ability, factual knowledge high grades, numerous degrees and distinctions are relatively unimportant unless accompanied by other desirable qualities.

"Scholarship is less demanded, wrote one placement officer 'except in large organizations carrying on research work.' Another replied, 'scholarship usually is placed last in the teaching profession.' A dean of a teachers' college, who stressed scholarship and stating there was no demand for teachers who were the least bit wild' added that demand was less for teachers who do not dance play cards, or engage in social affairs.

"Most employers enjoy sports and admit good sportsmanship, but athletic prowess counts only when the candidate is applying for a coaching position or teacher of physical education. Emphasizing the diminishing value of athletic ability as a job-getter others said, 'more success in athletics without genuine ability is no longer valued' and 'the captain of an athletic team seems to be all as an influence.'

"Employers are demanding individualized progress—men and women who will be executives within the next ten or fifteen years."

Museum Undergoes Rapid Expansion; Research Program Develops Well

Are Feature of Summer Term Exhibits

By ELLEN MAYNARD.

The S. L. C. Museum, under the direction of Mr. Fred Cagle, is undergoing a rapid expansion which is expressed in a number of phases and stages. The collections are being catalogued in order to make them accessible for biological research; the school loan collection is being built up and a set of exhibits is being prepared to illustrate the history, archaeology, and natural history of this region.

This transformation of the museum is made possible by the generous cooperation of the administration and school departments associated with the museum, and by the State Museum Project. The state project is engaged in collecting the material which they have suggested. And having thus so potentially directed us as to the best manner of keeping abreast, they assign us two chapters in the text for tomorrow, and announce an exam on the following Friday—thus rendering any attempt at self-enlightenment impossible.

It is any wonder, then, that the great majority of students, astounded at their own inadequacy and directed voice, "Oh, shucks, what's the use?" and in order to the moved by faculty throw up their hands in despair and exclaim in the tennis courts, Carter's and all points west?

U. HIGH TRIP TO NEW YORK IS SUCCESSFUL

The trip taken by Mr. Hal Hall, principal of University High school, and fourteen students of the institution was a great success according to reports made by those who went.

This new idea, originated by Mr. Hall, of bringing education down to the level of life as it is, was received with enthusiasm and proved to be successful and interesting.

The students with their sponsors were gone for ten days. During that time they visited some of the highlights in New York. Among these points of interest which they visited are the 'New York World's Fair,' Long Island, Rocky theatre, the Empire State Building, Times Square. The students also made a boat trip and saw some Broadway hits.

No delay of any kind, no injuries or mishaps, occurred during the whole trip. It was a success in every way, according to Mr. Hall.
